Flame

Author's Notes:
Day six of the thirty-day drabble challenge! I\'m starting to get jealous of all the longer stories... :)

The party was over, and it was dark in the basement rec room. Geddy found himself sitting in a quiet corner, just him and Lerxst on some oversized cushions on the floor. He was glad for the darkness. It would hide the way he was blushing.

He heard a rustle, and Alex's face illuminated in a flare from his lighter as he lit a smoke. He was beautiful, more radiant than the sun. Geddy suppressed a gasp. It wouldn't do to let Alex know how hot he burned for him. It was enough for now to sit and be dazzled.
